IRA poll SUCCESS astounds

BELFAST, Oct. 22 (AFP) - Sing Fein, the political wing of the provisional IRA, was emerging Friday as a credible political force with which Britain must reckon after its unexpected success in regional elections

Sinn Fein has won 10 percent of the votes counted so far, whereas pre-election forecasts gave it only three percent. The party's success belied widespread claims that it was a marginal group backing IRA terrorism and cut off from the half million Catholics who make up one-third of the Ulster population.

Partial results showed three Sinn Fcin candidates to have been elected to the 78member Ulster Assembly being set up by Britain as a first step toward restoring autonomous rule in the province of Northern Ireland, Sin Fein Deputy Leader Gerry Adams interpreted the election results as a "vote for Republican struggle against the British presence in Northern Ireland,"

Throughout the campaign, Sinn Fein upheld its pro-IRA positions, and the result was seen here as reflecting unsuspected strong support for the IRA's doctrine of violence among the Catholic population. "We knew we had popular support within the nationalist community. Now we have shown it," a Sinn Fein leader commented Friday.

Sinn Fein's election score, which caused consternation among Protestants and juhilation in the Catholic ghetto of West Belfast. poses a problem for the British authorities.

Sinn Fein candidates have said that, if elected, they would not sit in the assembly. thereby undermining its chances of function-ing constructively. The elections, which polarized political life in Ulster still further, were described by Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey Friday as "a complete polit-

Iran still adamant U.N. votes to end Gulf war

With Iran casting the only negative vote, the General Assembly Friday urged an immediate ceasefire in the Iran-Iraq war and the withdrawal of forces to internationally-recognized borders.

The vote on the resolution, sponsored by 14 mostly Arab countries, was 119 to one. with 15 abstentions.

The draft said the prolongation of the war, now in its third year, had taken a heavy toll in lives and property and endangered international peace and security.

It called on all states to abstain from actions that could contribute to the continuation of the conflict and requested Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to press ahead with peace-making efforts. Iran said the resolution took no account of what it called Iraq's responsibility for starting the war and for occupying and devastating Iranian territory.

In a key paragraph the resolution affirms

the necessity of achieving an immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of forces to internationally-recognized boundaries as a preliminary step toward the settlement of the dispute by peaceful means in conformity with the principles of justice and interna-

Speaking before the vote, Iranian Ambassador Said Rajaje Khorassani said a return to the pre-war situation meant not only a total and unconditional withdrawal of all forces hut also the payment of war reparations, a "just trial in a just tribunal of those criminals" who had violated all norms of international war, and the repatriation of Iraqis who had been expelled from their

At another point, Rajaie declared: "We were living in peace...we wanted it and we still want it...hut peace is different from a humiliating ceasefire, no ceasefire, only a total victory.

To urge PLO recognition

Arab team meets Reagan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP) - King Hassan II of Morocco and five Arab foreign ministers called Friday on U.S. President Ronald Reagan to urge recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the 'sole and legitimate representative" of the Palestinian people.

But they faced a demand from the United States that the Arabs recognize Israel's right to exist as a first step toward negotiations to end the Arab-Israeli conflict. U.S. officials. with diplomatic caution, told reporters not to expect any "dramatic hreakthrough" in the talks in President Reagan's office and over lunch at the White House.

But having announced proposals for Palestinian autonomy Sept. 1, the president was cager to get negotiations started. U.S. strategy calls for inducing the Arab League to authorize Jordan to negotiate on hehalf of the 1.4 million Arah Palestinians living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza under Israeli control.

But the Arabs, at a summit meeting at Fez. Morocco, only a week after the president's speech, effectively rejected the American plan by declaring only the PLO could represent the Palestinians. In fact, the Arah League tried to include a PLO representative in the delegation headed by King Hassan, but the United States said he would not be welcome nor negotiated with.

U.S. policy requires the PLO to accept Israel's right to exist as well as U.N. Security Council declarations that call for a peaceful settlement in the Middle East.

Reagan, U.S. Vice President George Bush and the Arab officials posed for photographs in the Rose Garden before the meeting. They did not reply to questions shouted by reporters, including whether the Arabs were prepared to recognize Israel. In a policy statement issued Thursday, the State Department said if the Arabs wanted a Middle East peace. they would have to agree to negotiate directly with Israel.

So far, only Egypt has taken that step. It resulted in 1979 in a peace treaty and, earlier this year, in Israel relinquishing the Sinai

An Arab League official, Clovis Maksoud. chided the administration Thursday, saying the U.S. refusal to receive the PLO representative meant that only "six-sevenths" of the delegation would meet with Reagan.

U.N. opposes S.A. loan plea

UNITED NATIONS. Oct. 22 (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly voted 121-3 Thursday to ask the International Monetary Fund to withdhold $1.07 billion in pending credits to South Africa as punishment for its policy of race segregation.

Only the United States. Britain and West Germany voted against a resolution asking the Washington-based IMF not to grant the credits or any other aid to South Africa. The resolution was sponsored by Guinea as current chairman of the 51-nation U.N. African Twenty-three countries abstained from voting. They included most other industrialized countries plus Honduras and Uruguay. and South Africa's near neighbors. Botswana. Lesotho and Malawi.

The fund, a U.N. specialized agency, is independent of the United Nations itself. Its executive board, to take up South Africa's hid for the credits next Wednesday, is not bound by the assembly's action. A critic of South Africa told a U.N. committee Tucsday that the loan was set for "routine" approval.

South Africa's U.N. mission issued a statement deploring the assembly action and called it "an attempt to introduce extraneous political issues into the activities of specialized agencies."

Gordon C. Luce. a U.S. delegate to the current session, told the 157-nation assembly. his government was convinced "that isolating and punishing the government of South Africa, as this draft resoltuion seeks to do. is not the way to effect the change that we all desire for the people of that country."

This technological breakthrough makes Sumitomo the leader in modern alchemy, of which the U.S. General Eelectric firm was one of the pioneers. Such diamonds are used in several industrial sectors, including the heads on videotape recorders, precision instruments, and drilling materials, and the artificial diamond should quickly find a market, particularly in the field of integrated circuits and semiconductors, Sumitomo research department head Yoshihiko Doi

no-Soviet talks conclude

Emergency to go, Jayewardene says

COLOMBO, Oct. 22 (R) - President Junius Jayewardene, newly re-elected for a second six-year term, said Friday that a state of emergency imposed throughout Sri Lanka after this week's polling would be lifted in the next few days.

Jayewardene said he declared the emergency hecause of fears that sporadic incidents around the voting booths might flare into widespread violence. He told a press conference there had been some shooting in the run-up to the election but no one was injured and no incidents had been reported since the emergency proclamation Wednesday.

Jayewardene said the election victory wa an endorsement of his free-market policies, ordered to Soviet support for Vietnam's freedom, not only political hut democratic... and afreed to Soviet support for Vietnam's freedom to do a joh, huy, live and east the freedom to do a joh, huy, live and east the freedom to do a joh, huy, live and east they did not see how the Soviet Union could freely." he declared.

The sessions which began Oci. 5 were the first high level contact since China broke off normalization talks with the Soviets in Moscow after the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in December 1979.

In Washington, State Department officials think China entered the talks mainly for internal political reasons and with little expectation of a major thaw in Chinese-Soviet relations. The officials say they also helieve Moscow may have sought renewed negotiations with Peking over border disputes and other issues in hopes of undercutning U.S. ties with China.

"Everything we are hearing from the Chinese both directly and through others is that they don't expect much to come from these talks," one official told Reuters.

The Reagan administration has been closely watching the situation since Hyichev started a new round of talks in the Chinese capital two weeks ago. State Department officials said any major thaw in Sino-Soviet relations resulting from the talks was likely to be viewed with alarm by the conservative Reagan administration. The officials said the Chinese were sticking to four main conditions for successful talks with the Soviet Union - a Soviet withdrawal From Afghanistan, pullbacks of Soviet troops

Israel ouster bid to be renewed later

UNITED NATIONS, Oct. 22 (AP) -Libya's ambassador announced Friday that Arah states had decided to postpone "until another time" their effort to unseat Israel in the U.N. General Assembly.

But Amhassador Ali A. Treiki warned that the ouster drive would be renewed at next year's session of the 157-nation assembly if. in the interim. Israel does not withdraw from Lehanon or fail to recognize the rights of the Palestinian people to self-determination.

Treiki confirmed what a key Islamic diplomat reported Thursday that the 21member Arah group had decided to go along with a Pakistani compromise proposal for a "collective written reservation" to Israel's continued seating in the assembly. The Lihyan envoy said a letter, outlining the reservation, has been opened for signature by all U.N. member states and that many already had signed it. If the Arab challenge to Israel's credentials were to have been pressed tn a vote next Monday, Treiki said, the ouster move would have received majority support.

The letter bases the reservation on past U.N. resolutions declaring Israel to be a non peace-loving state and condemning its annexation of Syria's Golan Heights and the Arah quarter of Jerusalem, He criticized the 'negative position" taken by the U.S. State Department, saying it demonstrated Washington's one-sided Middle East policy in favor of Israel. He was referring to the threat by Secretary of State George P. Shultz that the United States would pull out of the United Nations and cut off funds to the world body if Israel's credentials were rejected.

The Arah ouster drive. Treiki said, was "not directed at the United States people," wbom be described as "victims of the Zionist

Mahmoud Abdul Nasr of Oman, who appeared at the news conference with Treiki. said the U.S. threat had not influenced the Arab decision "in any way." Rather, he said. the Arah group was motivated by its own interests and the appeals for postponement by "our friends."

was in Washington to explore prospects for peace in the Middle East.

In Nairohi, Israel narrowly survived a vote early Friday on its ouster from a U.N. technical agency, the International Telecommunicanon Union, following prolonged and intense diplomatic baggling that thwarted a concerted drive by some Arah states. Delegates to an ITU conference passed a resolution sharply condemning the Zionist state for its invasion of Lehanon after agreeing to a Western-proposed package of amendments that omitted Israel's exclusion from agency meetings. The halloting came hours after Arab states formary dropped their campaign to expel Israel from the U.N.

General Assembly The issue threatened to disrupt the conference and the future of the 117-year-old organization. The United States declared Monday it would walk out of the meeting and suspend its $3.2-million funding if Israel was barred from the ITU. Other Western nations were considering similar steps. "If there has been one winner, one victor tonight, it is the ITU." said British delegate Michael P. Davies, who led the floor fight on behalf of the compromise measure. The compromise was adopted early Friday morning, climaxing a plenary session which began Thursday night.

Wheat harvest, flour production jumped dramatically this year

RIYADH. Oct. 22 - Domestic wheat harvest received by the Grain Silos and Flour Mills Organization this season jumped to 240,000 tons compared to only 85,000 last year according to an official spokesman who indicated that sales of flour also increased by 33 percent in comparison to last year.

Dr. Ahmad Shinawi, the organization's director general, said sales increased considcrably this year to meet domestic consumption of flour and fodders. About 11 million bags and 20,000 tons of bulk flour were sold. according to Shinawi. Packaged flour for home use also sold more than 85,000 cartons. be said, more than a 17-fold increase compared to the previous year.

More than three million bags of chaff, a 47 percent increase, and 1.5 million bags of various types of fodders, an increase of 17 percent, were sold this year. Shinawi said. He added that the organization's active contribution in 1982 has saved more than SR560 million in favor of the state's treasury as these funds should have been paid as subsidy for flour and fodder imports.

He reiterated that the organization will continue to progress toward the objectives defined by the government in production of high-quality, vitamin-enriched and reasonably priced flour. The production of fodders will be emphasized to preserve the animal resources and help boost industries hased on animal products like dairies and poultry farms, Shinawi said. Another prime objective of the organization is to purchase domestic wheat products at incentive prices with the aim of contributing to the agricultural development and food security of the Kingdom, he added.

U.S., France promise arms aid to Lebanon

BEIRUT, Oct. 22 (Agencies) - The United States has agreed to extend enough arms to Lebanon to equip three regular brigades while France pledged 6110 million francs worth of military hardware to this strife-torn Mediterranean state, Lebanon's state television reported Friday.

The station quoted its correspondent covering Lebanese President Amin Gemayel's trip to the United States, France and Italy as saying the arms deals were reached in Gemayel's talks in Washington and Paris in the past 48 hours. The TV reporters among Gemayel's entourage did not reveal the identity of their sources.

The television station said the arms deals were part of the government's drive to huild . up the Lebanese Army into an efficient law enforcement body throughout 111,452-square kilometer Lehanon.

The United States provided the Lehanese Army with $9.2 million worth of military equipment in the first three months of 1982. The shipments included 26 armored nersonhowitzers and 19 jeeps.

A brigade is made up of approximately 2,500 soldiers in the Lebanese Army, which now consists of about 28,000 troops. Gemayel is believed to be aiming at boosting the army to about 60,000 men.

In Rome, Gemayel asked the Italian government to help strengthen the multinational peace force in Lehanon and Italy undertook to study the possibility. Official sources said Gemayel made the request to Italian President Sandro Pertini and Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo.

After the talks, Colombo said Italy would consider bolstering the peacekeeping force on condition that not only Lehanon, but also France and the United States are in agree-

In Washington, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Thursday that he does not anticipate the United States will increase the size and broaden the peace mission now in Beirut. "I don't helieve so," Weinberger said. "I would certainly hope not."

SOMALI GESTURE

President Siad Barre of Somalia has made a generous gesture to Ethiopia to come forward and negotiate a peaceful settlement of their serious differences. And it would be unfortunate if President Mengistu should reject the offer in order to explore the possibilities of ending the war between the two countries. After the failure of the Somali thrust into Western Somalia, originally Somali territory inhabited by Somalis and ceded to Ethiopia by the colonial powers of the last century, Somalia has been on the defensive.

The Soviet Union supplied beavy military hardware to Ethiopia and airlifted 18,000 Cuban troops well behind the Somali lines trapping the cream of the Somali armed forces in the semi-desert. It was a severe setback for Siad, compounded by the creation of a refugee problem as nearly a million ethnic Somalis but Ethiopian citizens were uprooted by the Ethiopian authorities to seek an end to their agitation for unification with the rest of their compatriots. Since then, Ethiopia has been the stronger party in the conflict although this bas meant falling deeper and deeper into Soviet laps and diverting most of its already meager resources into the war effort. Of late, it has launched its own offensive against Somalia using dissident Somalis resisting the Barre regime as a smokescreen.

The Soviet Union is, of course, aiding and abetting the Ethiopians to pay the Americans in kind for their aid and comfort to the Afghans resisting the Soviet occupation of their country. Thus, the conflict could go on for a long time since Ethiopia believes that if Barre is overthrown be might be succeeded by a regime friendly to Addis and the whole problem will be resolved nicely and rapidly. Khomeini has beeo saying something like this with regard to Saddam Hussein and he bas been kept waiting to see it happen while more innocent people are dying on either side of the battlefield.

If Mengistur is really free of Soviet sbackles and can clearly perceive the larger interests of the two countries and peoples plus those of the Horn, he should respond equally generously to Barre's challenge in the service of peace. Both countries are extremely poor and are foolishly diverting their resources into the bonfire of the war.

We believe that Somalia is sincerely interested in a peaceful end to the conflict which has taken a high toll of men and resources and given it one of the higgest refugee disasters in Africa. And as the war has turned Ethiopia into a virtual Soviet and Cuban colony, peace might just be the way out of its impasse.

Twenty years after Cuban missile crisis

By Don McLeod

WASHINGTON -Twenty years after the United States and the Soviet Union risked nuclear war over missiles in Cuba, the basic problems that led to the showdown remain unsettled.

Cuba is still a Communist thorn in the side of the United States. Diplomats continue to labor over threats to peace when missiles are planted in the name of security. The medium-range missiles that Soviet technicians set up in Cuba in October 1962 have been carried away. Today's multi-warhead, globe-girdling models make them obsolete.

Perhaps one lasting lesson of the Cuban missile crisis is that, faced with the unthinkable, world leaders were able to think through a solution. It was close. Leaders of the two strongest nations on earth told each other they would not hesitate to push the final button.

'We will not prematurely or unnecessarily risk the costs of worldwide nuclear war in which even the fruits of victory would be ashes in our mouth -but neither will we shrink from that risk at any time it must be faced," President John F. Kennedy

The Soviets bad begun shipping missiles to Cuba in midsummer. By mid-October, spy planes took pictures which analysts said proved the weapons were capable of destroying U.S. cities within minutes. Robert F. Kennedy, the president's brother, attorney general and closest adviser, recorded that pictures taken on Oct. 17 showed the missiles could be operational within a week.

On Oct. 22, 20 years ago, President Kennedy announced the United States would impose a "strict quarantine on all offensive military equipment" shipped to Cuba, even if it meant stopping Soviet ships on the high seas. Kennedy also appealed to Soviet Premier Nikita Krushchev to remove the missiles and bombers. Plans were laid to invade Cuba on Oct. 30 if the appeal failed.

The Soviet response was to deny there were any such weapons in Cuba and to call Kennedy's quarantine "piracy." On Oct. 25, U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson displayed spy plane photographs at the United Nations, challenging the Soviet ambassador to deny the missiles and proclaiming. "I am prepared to wait for my answer until bell

The next day, Robert Kennedy wrote, Krushchev responded with a letter warning "if indeed war should break out, then it would not be in our power, to stop it." He assured Kennedy that the missiles in Cuba were only defensive. "You can be calm in this regard, that we are of sound mind and understand perfectly well that if we attack you, you will respond the same way," Krushchev wrote. "But you too will receive the same that you burl against us."

Krushchev offered to remove the missiles if Kennedy would promise not to invade Cuba. To accept Krushchev's offer might avoid war, but it would give the government of Fidel Castro permanent security the U.S. was loath to grant. Work on the missiles progressed. Ships carrying missiles steamed toward Cuba... .

Then came a second, more formal Soviet letter, also demanding the U.S. withdraw missiles from Turkey and Italy, aimed at the Soviet Union. Kennedy ignored the second letter and replied to the first. If the Soviets would withdraw the missiles and foreswear future introduction of such weapons, the United States would end the quarantine and "give assurances against an invasion of Cuba."

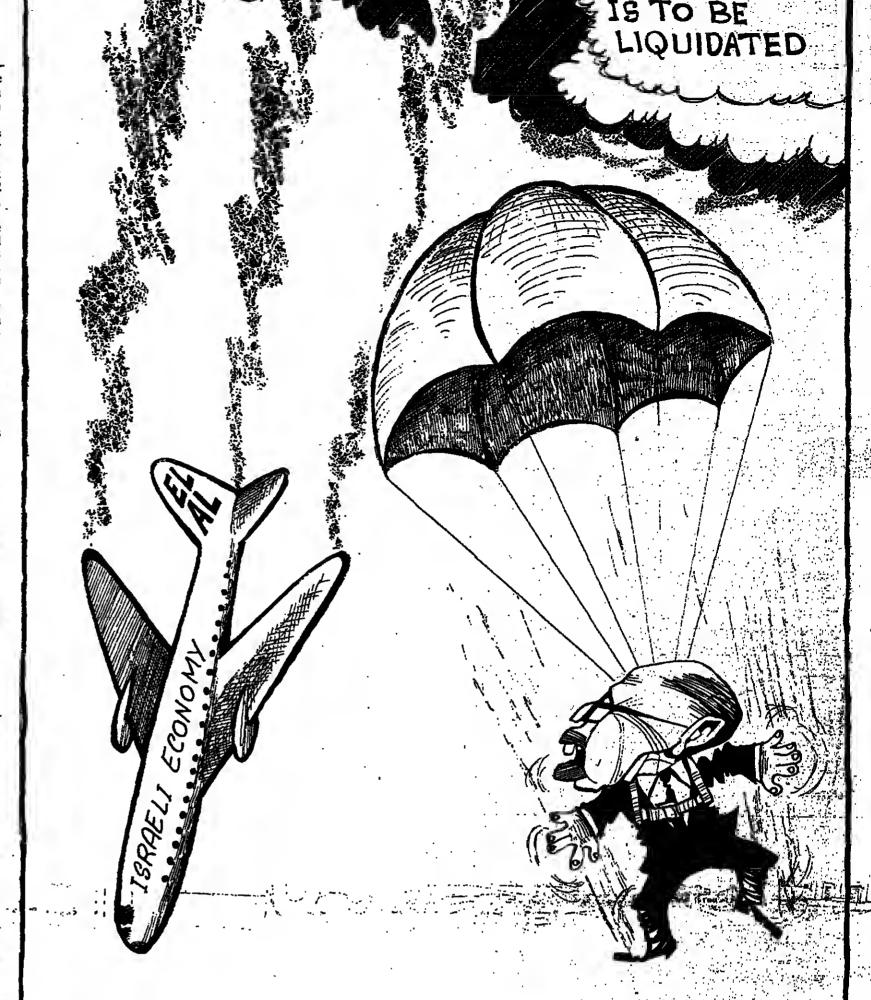

The Soviet ships began to turn back. Moscow confirmed that the missile sites would be dismantled in return for the American pledge of nonintervention in Cuba.

In the current issue of the The Washington Quar terly, retired Adm. George Anderson, chief of naval operations during the crisis and in charge of the blockade, speaks for those who say Kennedy gave up too much. "After the crisis, the Soviet Union retained thousands of technical and military advisers in Cuba, and obtained the withdrawal of American nuclear weapons from Italy and Turkey." Anderson says. "Also, the United States pledged never to use military force to overthrow Castro ... The Cuban missile crisis helped Castro consolidate his regime and belond the Southet Union achieve a permanent presence in the Western hemisphere."

In a paper published by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies, Latin expert Robert S. Leiken points out that sophisticated Soviet-built planes, submarines and missile-bearing ships pose enough threat in the Caribbean to frustrate NATO plans to support Western Europe in an emergency with ships from southern U.S. ports. Defense analysts say that after removal of the Cuban missiles, the Soviets were able to recover and achieve nuclear parity.

The tone of U.S.-Cuban ries improved for a brief time. Although formal relations were not resumed. the two nations established missions in each other's capitals and the U.S. economic quarantine was slightly eased. Relations chilled again when Castro began sending Soviet-financed troops to African hot spots and after the 1980 presidential elections.

President Reagan declared this spring that normal relations will be impossible until Castro admits "that he made the wrong choice quite a while ago and that be sincerely and honestly wants to rejoin the family of nations." (AP)

New Chad leader may contain Libyan ambitions

ABIDJAN -Hissene Habre's swearing-in as president of Chad Tursday was seen by dislomats as the climax of an American drive to check Libyan leader Col. Muammar Qaddaff's expansionist ambitions in

ARAB NEWS- JEDDAH

Diplomats in Abidjan and in other African capitals said that with 41-year-old President Habre apparently in command in the Central African country, Libya's isolation among its African neighbors seemed more complete than ever. Habre has made no secret of his hostility to Col. Qaddafi.

From Egypt, whose leaders branded Libya's ruler "mad Qsddafi." to Niger, where concern had been expressed over Lihyan subversion among the oomadic Saharan Tuarets. the U.S. policy of containment seemed to have met with complete success, the diplomats said. Earlier this year; a regular Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit scheduled for the Libyan capital, Tripoli, failed to take place for the first time in the OAU's 19-vear history because of a boycott by about 20 of its 51

From the time Col. Qaddafi sent 8,000 Libyan troops into Chad in latel 980 to back the now-ousted President Goukouni Oueddei, the U.S. played an active role in hacking Habre militarily, military sources said. Arms were shipped through Sudan and Egypt, two long-standing opponents of Col. Qaddafi, to Habre's base in eastern Chad. After an 11-month war which cost the Libyans neavily in turns of casualties and arms lesses, Col. Qaddaff's troops finally pulled back to the contested, potentially uranium-rich Aouzou strip of northern Chad, U.S. intelligence sources said. Habre, who has now traded his forage cap for a traditional Muslim tobe and headdress, said his poor, land locked country of about four million people would have no peace until the large strip. where intelligence sources said the Libvans had built a large military base, was returned to Chad. For the new Charl leadership, which is receiving some U.S. aid, a Libyan threat could still materialize both in the sparsely populated north, and in the predominantly Christian south, the sources said. At recent press conference, President Habre said Libyans were still "fomenting trouble" in Faya-Largeau, But with no independent confirmation of any Libyan presence there, it was difficult to discover whether the threat was real or the allegations were aimed at increasing Western aid. After months of sitting on the fence, France, the former colonial power, has finally come out in support of Habre. At a Franco-African summit in Zaire capital, Kinshasa, earlier this month, President Francois Mitterrand said he recognized the "de facto power" in N'djamena and pledged aid to the new administration. French sources said Paris was already paying a largely overstaffed Chad civil service every other month and would provide in total about 100 million French francs (about $14 million) to Chad this year.

Pro-Libyan Goukouni, who lost control of N djamena and the war in June, is in exile in Libya. He and a number of other former Chad warlords were expelled from Algiers earlier this month after. publicly stating they intended to continue waging war on President Habre, the diplomats said. In the southern Chad region, which produces the bulk of the country's meager earnings from mostly cotton exports, the threat could come from ousfed Col. Abdulkader Kamougue, Although a Christian, Kamougue has played the Libyan game at least ooce before in his rivalry with Habre. Diplomats said he now had nothing to lose having lost control

Despite the possible threat, they were cautiously hopeful that a lasting peace could emerge in Chad following more than 15 years of sporadic warfare. 'The momentum is there and the backing for Habre to strengthen his grip on the country as a whole through a strong central government," said one diplomat. "If anyone can do it, he is the one." (R)

Tenants' plight

Sir.

Most of the landlords in Jeddah bave given notices to their tenants to either vacate their premises or renegotiate rents as from 1-1-1403H. The landlords demand higher rents while renegotiating. and there are instances of different rates being charged on various tenants in the same building. The owners of new or vacant buildings are well aware of the plight of the tenants and bave hiked their prices, demanding payment for a year or so in advance. While it is a good thing to decontrol rents, it is unfair on the part of the house-owners to raise the rents exprisitently. Will the authorities come to the aid of the tenants by fixing certain norms according to the area location, the number of rooms and the type of construction?

A Korean's joy

I would like to express my thanks, on behalf of all Korean residents of this Kingdom, to you for the excellent feature articles on my country published in Arab News recently.

Beyond doubt all Koreans, including me, who read the articles entitled "From ancient city to modern metropolis: Seoul's transformation program in full swing" (Sept. 28) and "Symbol of nature conservation: an old pine who cabinet rank (Oct. 12) must have felt a certain kind of pride as Koreans, I was really excited with joy at the detailed coverage of my country in an alien country far away

The reports on the proposed Asian Games in 1986 and the Olympic Games in 1988, to be held in Seoul, indeed speak well of South Koreans.

3y sorting out radio signals

Scientists call for extraterrestrial study

By Warren E. Leary

WASHINGTON (AP) - An international group of scientists is calling for a major effort to find possible civilizations in space by listening for their radio signals.

In a letter published in Science magazine Friday, the scientists say the debate over wbether there is other intelligent life has gone on for decades and will continue to go unresolved without such an effort.

The scientists, representing many disciplines and countries, say their opinions are divided on a number of questions concerning other civilizations in space. "But we are unanimous in cour conviction that the only significant test of the existence of extra terrestrial intelligence is an experimental one," said the letter authored by Dr. Carl Sagan, the astronomer and author from Cornell

Others signing the letter, some Nobel Prize winners, include astronomers, engineers, biologists, physicians, philosophers and computer experts. Among the signatories are David Baltimore and Philip Morrison of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; A.G.W. Cameron, D.O. Wilson and Stephen Jay Gould of Harvard University; Fred Hoyle, Cambridge University, England; Vit-miles per second, about six trillion miles. "The cost of a systematic international research effort, using existing radio telescopes, is as low as a few million dollars per year for one or two decades," it continued. The scientists said such a search "would be more than a million times more thorough than all previous searches, by all nations, put together."

The program, called SETI (search for extraterrestrial intelligence), involved developing antennae and computer programs to listen to the flood of radio information coming from space and sorting out what might be signals from another world.

Astronomers claim sighting Halley's Comet

By Dolores Wood

PASADENA, California (AP) -Astronomers at California Institute of Technology said Wednesday they have sighted Halley's Comet about 1.6 billion kms from earth — hundreds of millions of kilometers farther out in space than it has been spotted Hallev's the most famous comet in the solar system — is due to swing around the sun again in early 1986. Scientists expect it to be visible in the night sky for the first time since

Graduate student David C. Jewitt and Professor G. Edward Danielson said they first isolated the comet, heading back toward the sun on a long orbit that takes it to the outer fringes of the solar system, against a backdrop of millions of stars on Oct. 16. They double-checked their observations on Oct. 19. and have reported their discovery to the International Astronomical Union in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

We hope other observations will reproduce the detection," Jewist said. "But I have no doubt that this is Halley's Comet." Halley's is now roughly 50 million times too faint to be seen with the naked eye they said. The comet, which in past excursions around the sun has developed a tail millions of miles long, was named after English astronomer Edmund Halley and has been recorded in some historical records as far hack as 87 B.C.

Steincrohn

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I got into trouble taking aspirin during the week before my gall bladder operation. My doctor warned me not to take aspirin at least 7-10 days before my surgery. He knew I had been taking it for years to control my arthritis. Not realizing that aspirin may cause complications if taken before surgery, I took only four a day (I'm used to taking as many as 12) until the day before my operation. Result? I developed post-operative bleeding. Fortunately, it was controlled without additional surgery. I needed blood transfusions. After I recovered, I confessed to my doctor I had taken aspirin. All he could do was shake his head and look at me as if I were a dunce.

which I probably am. — Mrs. O. Dear Mrs. O.: I won't get into lahels. hut if you are a dunce, be thankful you are a live one - and probably smarter than you were before the operation. It is well recognized that aspirin can influence the blood platelet count. This is one of the factors in blood clotting. It may increase intraoperative and post-operative bleeding even if taken in small amounts during the week prior to surgery. For example, in a study of about 200 patients undergoing a variety of operations, L. Kitchen, M.D. and associates of Stamford. Conn. Hospital found that bleeding occurred in 22 percent of patients who had both a positive drug history and abnormal platelet count: and only in 7 percent of patients who did not take aspirin and whose platelet count was normal. Sometimes, taking as little as two aspirins in the week before surgery may cause excessive bleeding. It makes good sense for all prospective surgical patients to discuss aspirin before surgery. (Replies to and from readers):

For Mr. K .: Your doctor is not being a "worrier" by saying it's important for you to have frequent checkups while taking lithium. Be thankful it has worked so well in its effect on your depression.

Lithium can exert toxic if too much accumulates in the body. For example, heart complications secondary to lithium treatment is increased in patients who have sodium depletion and are over 60 years old. Often, patients should be more thankful for a doctor who worries" than one who doesn't.

For Mrs. T .: There's no incontrovertible evidence that your success in quitting cigarettes will be greater if you use a graduated filter withdrawal system. In one study, all smokers who stopped on their own, and 60 percent of those who used other methods remained abstinent during the 12-month follow-up period. Nevertheless. a graduated filter system may help some people quit smoking who can't stop on their own, or refuse to seek professional help. You'll be interested to know, Mrs. T., that a long-term quitter doesn't invariahly gain weight.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: It seems to me that angina pectoris has lately become one of the prime subjects of discussion. Why was it never mentioned years ago? - Mr. G.

Dear Mr. G.: Well, let's go back quite a few years. It was in 1772. when Dr. William Heberden published his classic description of angina pectoris. In 1788. Dr. Caleh Parry wrote, "Angina pectoris is a disease of the heart connected with malorganization of the coronary arteries." The point I'm trying to make is that angina isn't a recent discovery.

(Tomorrow: Operation for high blood pressure)

It swings around the sun once about every 76 years and will be closest to the sun Feb. 9, 1986. It will be visible to the naked eye on the first day of 1986, scientists say. Dozens of scientists and astronomers tried to see Halley's in February, but it was difficult to spot hecause it was in a part of the sky dotted with millions of asteroids and because of its distance from earth.

Jewitt said the astronomers used the 458 cm telescope at Calitech's Mount Palomar Observatory — the largest optical telescope in the United States — and a relatively new instrument that records individual photons of

The prime focus universal extragalactic instrument, known as PFUEI, attaches to the telescope and detects 60 to 70 percent of the light photons striking it, then produces an amplified image that can be displayed on a television screen. Photographic films detect only a few tenths of a percent.

Water purifier saves time, cost

LONDON (LPS) - Resin regeneration time to produce pure water is reduced from between three and four hours to just 90 minutes with a British-made deionizer that produces water to a quality of 200 kilo-ohms.

The Aquatwin features a storage facility that allows deionized water to be used in a following sequence, thus speeding up the regeneration cycle so that in a typical hard water area a cost saving of 90 percent can be achieved over the usual method of exchanging cylinders, say the makers.

The self-contained unit, which can be easily moved by fork truck or trolley, also offers economies when used for pre-treatment in the production of ultra-high purity water by extending bed cylinder life by up to ten times. according to the makers.

A huilt in recirculation pump ensures good quality water at all times even when demand is spasmodic. The unit can be removed from a working area for regeneration so there is no risk of contamination from acid or alkali

 Argentina charged that Britain had deployed nuclear weapons in the South Atlantic during the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands War, thus breaking an international treaty banning such weapons in Latin

"In the recent colonial aggression in Latin America, the British fleet operated with a complete arsenal, including nuclear weapons." Argentine delegate Julio Cesar Carasales told a U.N. debate on disarmament on Thursday.

LONDON. Oct. 22 (AP) - Crime reached a new peak last year in England and Wales, with offenses recorded by the police totaling just under three million, up 10 percent in 1980. The Home Office, which issued the statistics, said they were the worst ever. About 8,000 iovolved firearms, with pistol crimes up 80 percent and shotgun use 50 percent higher.

Robberies involving guns numbered about 1,900 an increase of 750, but in no offense group were guns used in more than 10 percent of cases, the Home Office said.

Sexual offenses at about 19,000 were the lowest recorded in the last 10 years, when yearly totals varied between 21,000 and a peak of 26.000. Rape continued to decline and was under 1.100.

KABANKALAN. Philippines. Oct. 22 (R) — An Australian Catholic priest and six Filipmo Church workers detained on rebellion charges were released on bail Thursday to cheers from a crowd of 3,000 supporters.

A judge in this central Philippine town temporarily released Brian Gore and the six Filipinos after their mission put up hail of $12,000. Church lawyers had argued the seven were not accused of a capital crime and were not arrested under a presidential order.

Gore, 38, from Perth, was detained Monday on charges of inciting rebellion and possessing explosives and ammunition after a raid on his house last month.

After the hail decision, he told Reuters: "It only goes to show that the charges filed against me are not true and have no basis." Bishop Antonio Fortich said Gore would resume work in his parish here where he has spent more than 10 years.

On his release, Gore was mobbed by a crowd which had maintained a four-day vigil outside the police station in which he wa: held. Police with rifles were stationed outside but no violent incidents were reported. In Manila, Cardinal Jaime Sm. head of the Catholic church in this predominantly Catholic country, said he did not know if recent government action against priests like Gore was part of a systematic campaign against the Church. "It would seem, however, from all the evidence at hand, that to helieve that a series of moves against the priests and nuns is a coincidence would be to strain the bounds of credibility." he said.

"Many of the so-called 'subversive' priests have earned this label through circumstances beyond their cootrol." But he added; "I am not quick to see a systematic plot in the series of government moves against certain memhers of the church and against the nuns."

tle of Extra-Strength Tylenol containing cyanide-laden capsules was found by authorities checking bottles ordered pulled from store shelves Oct. 2. Police Superintendent Richard Brzeczek said.

He said the bottle was found in shelf stock turned over to authorities by a grocery store near the drug store where the seventh reported Tylenol-cyanide poisoning victim. Chicagoan Paula Prince, purchased a 24capsule bottle of the painkiller.

Mayor Jane Byrne banned sales of the best-selling over-the-counter pain remedy at a news conference called to announce that Chicago police had discovered the body of Miss Prince, 35, in her apartment on Oct. 1. Mrs. Byrne also requested that city merchants turn shelf and stock supplies of Tylenol into city authorities for lesong.

Brzeczek said McNeil Consumer Products Co. the manufacturer of Tylenol, contracted with a laboratory to test the stock turned over by store owners. He said the discovery of the latest contaminated capusles was made at that lah Thursday.

that the lot number on the newly discovered contaminated bottle - MC28g0 - was the same hatch that was found to have been taken by four of the other victims. All four persons were residents of Chicago suburbs.

Meanwhile, police and FBI agents in New York city said Thursday they were working on the assumption that James W. Lewis, wanted for questioning in the Tylenol killings, and his wife, Leann, were still in the city and continued their search.

The Lewises checked out of the Rulledge Hotel on Saturday, where they had been stay-ing since Sept. 6. The seven persons who swallowed poisoned Tylenol capsules died between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1.

It was a photo of the bearded Lewis, wanted on a federal warrant for trying to export $1 million from McNeil Consumer Products that led a hotel resident to call police this week.

FBI officials have emphasized that Lewis was not a suspect in the deaths and that they had "no evidence" to link him to them. They say, however that they do want to talk to him about the killings.

Peking denies aiding Angola rebels

PEKING. Oct. 22 (AP) - The Foreign Ministry announced Friday that diplomatic relations will be established with Angola and denied that Communist China is aiding the insurgent National Union for Total Independence of Angola. A ministry statement said. "China and Aogola have recognized each

The establishment of diplomatic relations ends a bitter, ten-year breach between the two Marxist nations. During the Angolan Civil War, China, the United States and other Western countries tried to prevent a victory by the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola - now the ruling party backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba.

Representatives of the two governments are holding talks in Paris on establishing official relations, the statement said. It said some people "have spread the allegation" that China still is giving aid to the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, which seeks to unseat the government. "Such allegations are entirely groundless," it said.

China aided the three independence movements — Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, the National Union for Total Independence of Angola and the Angolan National Liberation Front — which fought to oust the Portuguese from Angola. the statement said, "Since Angola won inde-pendence," it said, "China has ceased its aid to all the three organizations.

Freed Cuban poet arrives in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 22 (AFP) - Cuban poet. Armando Valladares, 45, released from a Cuhan prison Thursday after 22 years following an appeal from French President Francois Mitterrand, arrived here Friday from Havana via Madrid.

He was welcomed by his wife, and by French presidential counselor Regis Dehray. a former collaborator of the late guerrilla fighter Che Guevara.

Valladares was ghostly pale after 22 years in prison but able to walk unaided. Valladares, sentenced in 1961 to 30 years imprisonment on a charge of helonging to a terrorist sabotage group, boarded a Cuhan airliner in Havana Thursday night. Cuhan authorities, who for the past several years had denied reports that Valladares was paralyzed. invited the entire foreign press corps to the airport, apparently to verify he was in good physical condition.

Valladares, wearing a blue-gray suit and carrying a coat and suitcase, was unsmiling as he boarded the Soviet-built llyushin aircraft in Havana. Three years ago, he sent word from his prison that his legs were paralyzed. He even entitled one of the poems smuggled out of the jail, "From my Wheelchair." But during the past three years, no other information about his condition filtered out. Cuhan officials accused him of feigning, and said he had refused all medical care.

Valladares walked the 50 meters from th airport lounge to the ramp with no trouh'

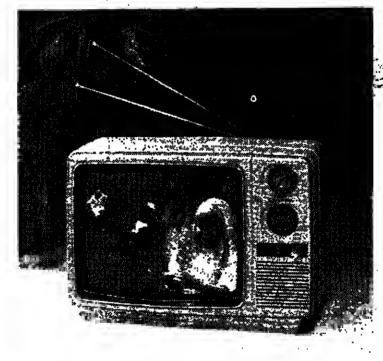

Valladares' original sentence was reduhy five years, which would have me release in 1986. But poems and letters sn gled from his prison led European intelle als to start a campaign for his release. Amnesty International and the Vatican joined the campaign, and Mitterrand responded to the group's efforts by making a personal request to Cuban President Fidel Castro for Valladares' release.

Ecuador emergency claims one; 200 held

QUITO. Ecuador. Oct. 22 (AP) — One person died, 50 were injured and 200 others were arrested as student and worker protests marked a 24-hour strike that paralyzed the country on the first day of government-ordered state of emergency, government officials said Friday.

"I know one citizen died" in Ouito, said Interior Minister Galo Garcia. Press sources reported the victim was a student, but no other details were available. Army patrols firing tear gas and shots in the air routed student and worker demonstrators in downtown Quito, witnesses said.

Defying a ban against demonstrating against the government's austery program protesters blocked some downtown streets with stones and hurning tires. Army trucks with soldiers in comhat uniform and armed with rifles dispersed the demonstrators. Shots

Survey raps U.S. textbooks

NEW YORK. Oct. 22 (AP) — A new survey of 11 widely used U.S. history textbooks says that too many gloss over the horrors of nuclear war and fail to critically examine war as an instrument of foreign policy.

"War, as a social institution, goes unchallenged. This helps to perpetuate the notion that war is inevitable and a reasonable way of solving conflicts," according to the survey entitled "Militarism in Textbooks: An

The survey was published in the current bulletin of the Council on International Books for Children. Its co-authors are Sergiu

K.minister pelted with eggs

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AFP) — Disgruntled health workers pelted British Health Secretary Norman Fowler with eggs and tomatoes as he arrived to inaugurate a hospital ward in the London area. Fowler escaped the projectiles by dashing into the hospital. Health workers have observed partial strikes for more than five months to press salary demands.

In another incident, Home Secretary William Whitelaw was boosed by policemen white addressing a police trade union meeting to which he had been invited Wednesday. Police are also seeking salary rises.

Prime Minister Vargaret Thatcher described the incident involving Whitelaw as "disgraceful." Speaking in the House of Commons, she said: "The police have had a very good deal from the government.

Meanwhile, the health commission of Britain's main labor confederation, the Trades Union Congress, called on its unions to poll members on a possible general strike to support the country's health workers. The TUC commission said the move was a "decisive step toward a major escalation of the health service dispute."

PARIS. (AFP) - The French government is drawing up an aid program for the 30.000 persons, who have fled from Uganda into Rwanda since the beginning of the month with accounts of "harassment" by Ugandan authorities. The Cooperation and Development Ministry has bosted two meetings this week with representatives of other ministries and French humanitarian organizations, to coordinate emergency relief. After a meeting reliable sources said the government had agreed to pick up the hill for the cost of flying out medical supplies provided by relief organizations. This latest wave of refugees from Uganda consists of people of Rwandan descent, many of whom have lived in what is now Uganda for several generations.

WASHINGTON. (R) — U.S. planes Wednesday intercepted two Soviet reconnaissance aircraft apparently on an espionage mission near the east coast of the United States and escorted them out of the area, the Pentagon said. A spokesman said the two TU-95 bombers, converted for aerial espionage, penetrated the so-called air defense identification zone and flew over the U.S. aircraft carrier Sarnoga, on sea trials after a major overhaul. He said U.S. interceptors from the carrier and other land-based planes escorted the Soviet aircraft out of the air defense zone. It was the seventy entry into the zone by Soviet aircraft this year.

WASHINGTON. (R) — The Soviet Union successfully fired four multiple-warhead missiles from its new 25,000-ton Typhoon submarine late last week, the Pentagon said. The missiles were launched from a point in the sea, north of European Russia, according to a Pentagon spokesman. Two landed on the Kamchatka peninsula in Siberia and two hit test targets about 2,500 miles away in the eastern Pacific, he said.

ernment move to deal with a stock market crisis has led to registration of post-dated checks totaling more than 26 billion dinars ($91 billion) at face value. officials said.

The crisis surfaced in July with a fall in share prices largely due to the Iraq-Iran war. Many investors were unable to honor postdated checks.

A government decree a month ago required that sbare deals with post-dated checks must be registered within 30 days. The officials said that 28,861 post-dated checks with a total value of 26.743 million dinars ($91.6 billion) bad been registered by Thursday's deadline. Kuwait's stock market is ranked eighth in the world, with a 1981 turnover of 1.9 billion dinars ($395 billion).

The crisis has affected investors in Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) tn a lesser extent. In Bahram, officials estimated a handful of investors trading in the Kuwait stocks market were affected, with contracts worth about 15 million Bahraini dinars (about $40 million).

In the UAE, chambers of commerce officials said UAE citizens were affected to the tune of between 400 million and 500 million dirhams ($109 million to $130 million).

TT talks delay ruled out dangerous time. The world recession has promoted protectionism, caused rising unemployment and stagnating trade and domestic producers. GATT Director General Arthur Dunkel has denied a French press report that the conference might be postponed or cancelled: "I think the nations who have signed the GATT have every reason to sit down and try to face their problems together, but neither I nor my secretariat can force ministers to come," Dunkel told reporters here.

Deputy U.S. Trade Representative Michael Smith said it would be very unfortunate if the conference were postponed.

The United States wanted action to halt protectionism and the increasing amount of trade taking place outside agreed activities. "We must stop the hleeding. There is virtually nobody without warts in this business."

OECD sees rapid decline in inflation

TOKYO, Oct. 22 (R) - Inflation rates in OECD member countries are falling faster than anticipated and the decline is expected to continue, OECD Secretary General Emile Yan Lennep has said.

He told a press conference the strategy of "non-accommodating" monetary and fiscal policies adopted by OECD countries is working effectively in combating inflationary pressures sparked by the rise in oil prices. There has clearly been moderation in wage increases in many countries and inflation will fall more than expected, he said.

In August, the latest munth for figures, the average year on year inflation rate for OECD countries was below 8 percent for the first time in four and a balf years, Van Lennep

Developments in the U.S. economy and the decline in interest rates are positive factors for the world as a whole, he said. Growth in OECD countries continues to be dampened by declining exports to developing countries partly reflecting lower commodity prices, but should pick up to a moderately good rate of 3 percent for the second half of next year, Van Lennep said.

Van Lennep was speaking at the end of a three-day series of meetings with Japanese government leaders, monetary authorities and businessmen. He said that with interest rates in the U.S. and Europe falling conditions were now very favorable for an appreciating of the yen. There was general agreement with the officials he met that an appreciation would benefit Japan, by easing inflationary pressures, as well as its trading partners, he Aiming at 2m bpd

Abu Dhabi steps up oil hunt

Dhabi National Oil Company (ADNOC) is investing heavily in exploration and development to ensure an output capacity of around two million barrels per day (bpd) inthe late 1980s, General Manager Mahmoud Hamra Krouha said.

He told Reuters in an interview Thursday that capacity in Abu Dhabi now is about 1.1 million bpd, but actual current output is somewhat below that although Abu Dhabi has produced higher in recent years.

The other main producer in the United Arab Emirates is Dubai which has in recent years pumped around 350,000 bpd. Dubai is also actively exploring as output from existing modest fields could be exhausted before 1990, according to industry sources.

Krouha said that in Ahu Dhabi, ADNOC and its partners, including British Petroleum (BP) and the Shell group, Compagnie Fran-ciases des Petroles (CFP) and the Japan Oil Development Company (JODCO), are Krouha said development of the 500,000 bpd Upper Zakum field for ADNOC and JODCO, which has a 70 percent interest, should be complete by mid-1984. He said spending on exploration and development is expected to taper off after 1983, and expenditure on oil-related projects and refining may also ease up.

Uncertainty about domestic consumption made it difficult to predict the volume of UAE product exports in the mid-1980s, but domestic demand could be about 150,000 bpd, which would leave around 75,000 bpd for export, Krouha said.

The new Ruwais refinery, which began operating in July 1981, had been running at 80 percent of its capacity of 120,000 bpd and capacity at Umm Al Nar, the UAE's other refinery, will have been boosted to 75,000 bpd hy June next year from 15,000 at pres-

Marcinkus ends silence on links with Ambrosiano

ROME, Oct. 22 (R) - Archbishop Paul Marcinkus, breaking a long silence over links between the Vatican Bank, IOR, and the former Banco Amhrosiano, said in an interview Thursday that IOR would always honor obligations as long as they had been cicarly assumed.

But the IOR bank chief denied that IOR had guranteed $1.3 billion of loans which Ambrosiano made to Panamanian companies, and which the companies later failed

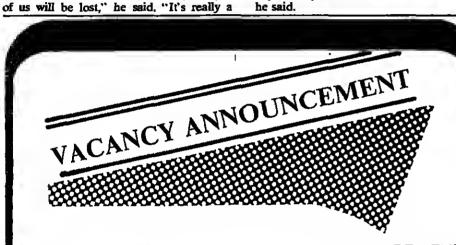

Archbishop Marcinkus also told the Catholic weekly Sabato that be had never planned financial operations with Ambrosiano President Roberto Calvi; as alleged in the Italian parliament.

It was the Archibishop's first, substantial statement on the Ambrosiano affair since Calvi was found dead in London last June. The London coroner said he committed sui-

Referring to letters of patronage he gave Calvi stating that the IOR controlled a number of Panamanian finance uses, the archbishop said: "The letters never had the validity of guarantees however, IOR has always and will continue to face up to its obligations, provided that they were indeed obligations clearly entered into," the American churchman added.

Italian Treasury Minister Beniamino Andretta has said the Vatican Bank owes the $1.3 billion to the Amhrosiano group, which is in the process of enforced liquidation. However, an inquiry hy legal advisers to the Vatican has cleared the Vatican Bank of any financial liability to the private Milanese bank, the semi-official Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano reported last week.

World Bank expert says states fail to honor debts than 40 countries are falling behind in their international debt payments, an authority on the finances of the poor countries said Thurs-Increasing debt of poor countries to both other governments and to commercial banks - now estimated at over half a trillion dollars - has been causing worry about the whole system of international banking. Mexico and

Argentina are the most recent cases, but many other countries are at different stages of crisis and bave had less publicity. Chandra S. Hardy, a senior economist at the World Bank, counted 26 governments at the end of 1981 that were not keeping up payments on their loans - versus three in 1974, during the last big recession. The amount in arrears had risen from about $5tht million to $5.5 billion, she added. "You can add at least 10 countries now."

she said. "and that doesn't include the Communist countries - Poland. East Germany. Romania, Yugoslavia, Cuba. You could ask: who isn't in arrears?"

Last year eight countries negotiated delays in payments — "reschedulings" — of their official debt alone: Zaire for the fifth time in five years, Pakistan for the third time in a decade. Turkey has also had five reschedulings since, 1959, and India had five between 1968 and 1976.

Every country that has had such delays in the past two years needs new delays, she added. The International Monetary Fund reports that at least four countries - Sudan, Madagascar, Romania and Malawi - have completed negotiations so far this year, and at least four more - Mexico, Argentina, Costa Rica and Togo - are pending.

These figures leave out Communist countries such as Poland, few of which belong to the fund, and they cover only governmentto-government debts.

More than half of poor countries' debis, according to Mrs. Hardy, is owed to commercial banks rather than to governments.

According to the International Monetary Fund, many of the delays granted on pay-ments of these "private" debts remain "private" - that is, they are not publicized, though many bankers know about them.

Fund officials said at least two private reschedulings — for Liberia and Senegal have been completed this year and six others are pending: For Mexico, Argentina, Costa Rica, Malawi, Romania and Togo.

Mrs. Hardy has written a report entitled 'Rescheduling developing-country debts. 1956-1981: Lessions and recommendat ions." It was published Thursday by the Overseas Development Council, a private. non-profit research group. She updated some of the figures in a telephone interview.

The two teams escorted from the stadium by police before the main riot hroke ont, and after fighting had raged for an hour a para military force, the Sind Constabulary, were called in.

The trouble began when Australian fast bowler Geoff Lawson, fielding at deepsquare-leg, drew his captain's attention to several small stones thrown at him. BRISBANE, Australia, Oct. 22 (AP) -The cream of England's bowling was embarrassed by unberalded Harry Frei, a 31-yearold German-born Brisbane hrickies' mate, as Queensland railied after a poor start on the opening day of their four-day cricket match at the GABBA Oval Friday.

Queensland's revival continued when they put England in to bat as fast bowler Carl Rackemann took a wicket with his first ball and England, at stumps, were 16 for one in reply to Queensland's 297 for nine declared. The match opened England's 30th cricket tour of Australia.

Frei, batting at No. 9 in his state debut. was undaunted by the score which read 163 for 7 when he came to the wicket. The wiry rightbander, who also bowls left-arm seamers, hit the first ball he faced, from off spinner Vic Marks, to the boundary.

Thirty-five balls later he had hit another four boundaries and five sixes to record one of the fastest half centuries ever scored at the Brisbane cricket ground.

"I enjoyed every minute of it." said Frei. who only became available for selection in the Queensland team because of a foothall suspension which allowed him an earlier than normal start to the cricket season.

Greg Chappell, the Queensland captain. was also impressed with the way England has started their campaign to retain the Ashes.

JEDDAH. Oct. 22 — Only four teams maintained a clean slate as two fancied teams, Saudia Blues and Oldies, hit the dust after the second round of the Jeddah Bridge League.

PakInd White went to the head of the table with a 13-7 victory over last season's winners Saudia Blues. And PakInd Green went one better by troucing Oldies 17-3. But Dunes' 17-3 verdict over ADS saw PakInd Green taking third place, trailing Dunes by one Victory Point. While Gray Mackenzie climbed to fourth with its 14-6 victory over cellar team KAIA.

Meanwhile, Vikings recorded their maiden

Lesser lights put Italian World Cup stars in shade

ROME, Oct. 22 (R) — Italy's World Cup soccer heroes, carried aloft by jubilant fans when they returned home from Spain with soccer's most coveted trophy in July, have come down to earth with a bump with the new season just six matches old. Fans have found the promised sparkling start to the new season has gone as stars like Paolo Rossi. Francesco Graziani and Marco Tardelli, household names in Spain, struggle to find their world-conquering best, Rossi, Juventus' six-goal star of the World Cup tournament whom Italians seemed ready to defy a few weeks ago, has scored only once this season.

The 26-year-old idol, whose superb hattrick put favorites Brazii out of the World Cup. was taken off 10 minutes before the end of his side's last league match. But the lackluster start to the season is not confined to Rossi and Juventus. Two other clubs, Inter Milan and Fiorentina, who with Juventus provided all hut one of Enzo Bearzot's World Cup-winning side, are also languishing in mid-table after a string of indifferent results.

Francesco Graziani, Rossi's fellow international striker, whose tireless running was vital to Italy in Spain, was taken off at balf time last Sunday as his club Fiorentina crashed 2-0 to struggling Udinese.

Press reports talked of a crisis in the Fiorentina dressing room at half time as Graziani and manager Giancarlo de Sisti argued heatedly before the 29-year-old forward refused to return to the pitch. De Sisti later described the reports as "exaggerated". Sisti did admit that he had offered his resignation after the match.

Another of Juventus' World Cup stars, Marco Tardelli, was sent off two weeks ago against Fiorentina and has yet to find the form he showed in Spain. The party seems to be over for the "Azzurri", the Italian World Cup squad, whose inspired World Cup performance brought extravagant national celebrations to Italy.

This time last season, Juventus, Fiorentina and Inter Milan were all in the top four of the league. Today none of them are there, and their places have been taken hy Torino, Verona and Sampdoria, three clubs who did not provide a single player for the World Cup team, and Roma, who contributed Brano Conti, 27, and Italy's World Cup captain and goalkeeper Dino Zoff are virtually the only players who seem to be enjoying the new season. Conti's mazy dribbling and fierce shooting have helped Roma to the top of the league, while Zoff has only let three goals into the Inventus net.

Perhaps drawing confidence from Zoff's form, Juventus manager Giovanni Trapattoni has said he is not worried by his team's indifferent start, and believes his internationals will overcome their World Cup blues. Trapattoni's two close-season huys from abroad, French captain Michel Platini and Poland's talented striker Zhigniew Borniek; have also found their World Cup form elu-

Kingdom finishes 3rd as Kuwait concedes tie

Football Confederation Friday suspended two officials from Nepal and one from Kuwait who were involved in Thursday's fight between Nepalese and Kuwaiti players at the Asian Youth Football Tournament.

After a five-hour meeting, the disciplinary committee suspended K.M. Rajendra, an assistant coach from Nepal, and Cissa Al-Jassas, manager of Kowait's team, for two Rajendra allegedly instigated the Nepal players to join the fray. 'Al-Jassas was suspended for trying to assault the referee, G. Natarajan of India. Meanwhile, Nepalese doctor, Chhabiraman Dahal, was suspended for a year for going onto the field without the referee's permission.

The committee declared Kuwait, which scored four goals against Nepal during Thursday's unfinished game, the winner. However, due to better goal average, Iraq qualified for the final match from the Pool. The final slated for Saturday will be between Irag and United Arah Emirates.

Kuwait on Friday forfeited the third-place game to Saudi Arabia because several of its players were injured.

The match Thursday was abandoned 10 minutes from time. The fight erupted after Kuwait's Adnan A. Muhammad hit a Nepalese player following a dispute involving over a line throw.

Heart's novel way of survival

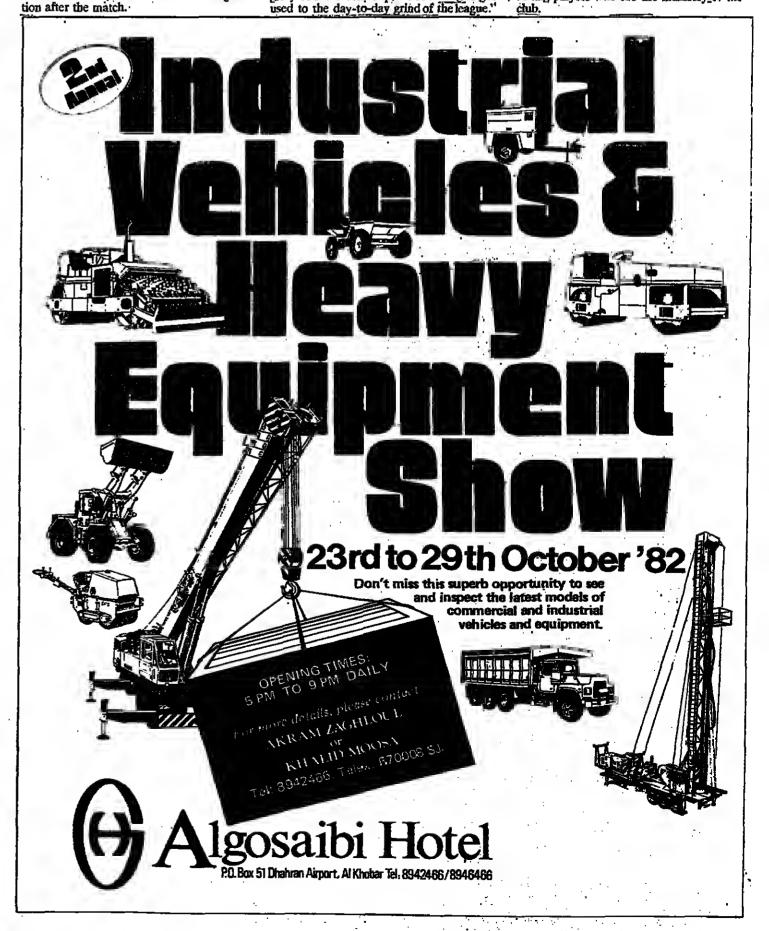

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 22 (AFP: - Hard-up Scottish First Division club Heart of Midlothian Thursday launched a revolutionary new form of sponsorship to help repay their substantial dehts.

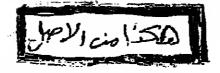

The Edinburgh side are offering a new house and a car, worth 35,000 pounds to one lucky match program winner.

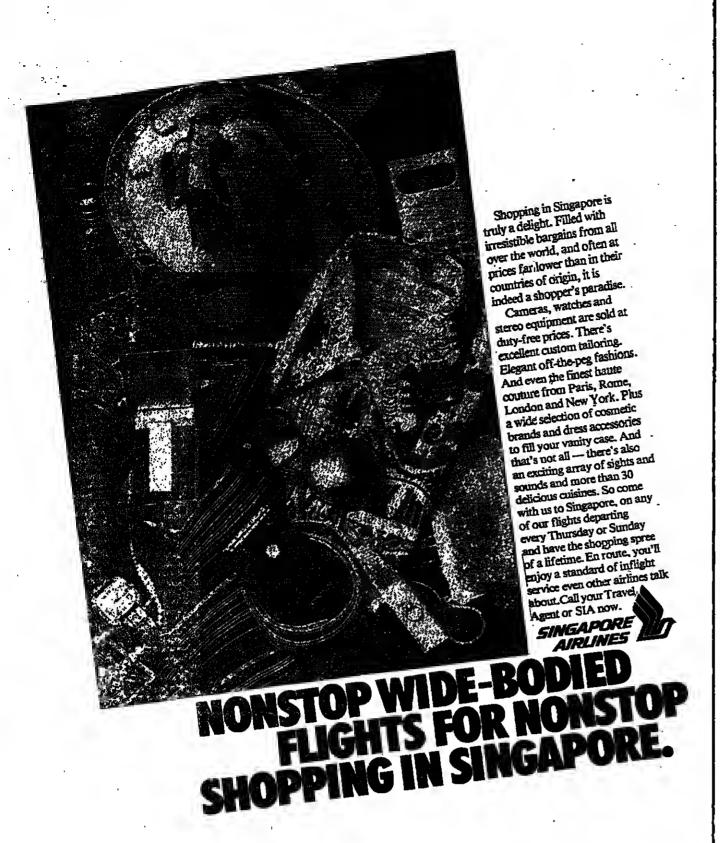

Every person who huys a one-pound program for Hearts' League cup semifinal second-leg tie against Glasgow Rangers at New Castle on Nov. 19 automatically quatifies for the prize draw to be made that night. The "no strings attached" jackpot is a 29,000-pound house and a Ford Sierra valued at 6,000 pounds.

Hearts, who owe Celtic and Dundee United considerable sums for the transfers of Roddie McDonald and Willie Pettigrew. intend using the proceeds from the expected bumper gate receipts to pay back part of those fees.

The club have arranged for an initial print run of 30,000 programs throughout seven things will come right." Trapattoni said this thundred outlets and Hearts Chairman Walweek. But Platini was harsher. After the lace Mercer said: "This deal prevents us from glory of the World Cup, we're having to get selling players who are the mainstay of the

The number one faculty to be a good declarer is the ability to plan the play of a hand in its entirety. Unfortunately, most declarers play quickly at the start of a hand and discover later that they neglected to prepare properly for a situation they could have anticipated. For example, it would be easy to go wrong on this deal. Declarer sees that the slam is certain if the spade finesse succeeds; or if the spade finesse loses but the spades are divided 3-3; or if the diamond finesse wins after he's had bad luck twice in spades.

But if that's as far as declarer's thinking goes, he's not trying hard enough. The method of play virtually certain to succeed is to start by winning the club lead with the ace and trumping a citib with the jack. South next plays a low trump to the six and ruffs another club high, then plays a low trump to the eight and ruffs dummy's last club high, producing this position:

West cannot defeat declarer by playing his spade nine on the deuce. In that case, South wins the nine with the king, plays a trump to the ace, and leads the seven of spades, olaying the six from dummy. Again East wins with the eight, and again he must concede the slam. Planning the play at the start produces a slam at the Paris, Bonn agree on close defense ties

the first time Friday to consult Bonn on decisions relating to its nuclear deterrent which affect West German security. President François Mitterrand said.

After two days of talks with Chancellor Helmut Kohl. Mitterrand told reporters an agreement had been reached to bold sixmonthly ministerial meetings on security and defense policy and set up a permanent commission on this subject. He described the agreement as "one of the most important achievements of this summit.

Mitterrand said there was no question of associating Bonn with French nuclear strategy or of transferring nuclear arms technology to West Germany.

The talks had dealt "essentially with the modernization of French tactical forces ... and consideration that problems specific to German security, and which depend on France, must be examined in advance by Germany and France," he said. Answering questions, he said a new generation of longer-range tactical nuclear weapons in the

Synthetic sugar halts tooth decay

LONDON, Oct, 22 (AP) - A British sugar company has developed a way to produce a new sugar that may prevent tooth decay, according to The Times newspaper Thursday.

The company, Tate and Lyle, has built a pilot plant that can produce the synthetic sugar, isomaltulose, and is now investigating the potential market for the sweetener, the article said.

According to the report, researchers at the company's laboratories believe cavity- causing bacteria cannot use the synthetic sugar as an energy source, so food and sweets containing the substance would not promote multiplication of the bacteria or the resulting decay.

The new sugar is produced by passing sucrose, everyday sugar produced by plants, through an algae-like jelly full of bacteria that consume the sucrose to produce isomaltulose. The new sugar is crystalized out of the resulting liquor, the article said.

If tests prove it safe for consumption. isomaltulose could he sold commercially at a price two to ten times that of sucrose, depending on the quantity produced, the report said.

Kohl said the agreement was "a very important continuation of the spirit of our friendship treaty." But the sounded a note of caution about the direction of future Franco-German strategic cooperation. "To prevent any misunderstanding. I would like to underline that cooperation with the United States is just as important in all these areas."

West German defense Minister Manford Woerner said after Thursday's first formal ministerial-level security talks there could be no question of a Franco-German defense axis. Diplomats said the accord represented the first time that France had been prepared to share details of its independent nuclear deterrent with an ally since it left NATO's integrated military command in 1966.

Kohl said he and Mitterrand agreed on the need to pursue the East-West dialogue despite recent severe setbacks. He said Poland's move last week to outlaw the independent Solidarity trade union was a repressive measure which is a lasting heavy hurden on East-West relations."

Meanwhile, a senior Soviet official said that an extensions of the French nuclear defense system to cover West German territory would not belp the cause of stability in Valentin Falin. a senior adviser to the Communist Party's policy-making central committee, was commenting on reports that an extension of the French nuclear umbrella had been discussed during meetings between West German and French ministers in Bonn. "It is a bypothetical question, of course .. I don't want to criticize what is going on between France and West Germany hut it must be borne in mind that the actions of any European, coutries in defense inevitably affect the security of others." he told Reuters in an interview.

"Such a move could not help the security of Europe ... We will be watching any developments carefully," he said. Falin, an expert in West German affairs and a former ambassador to Bonn, was in Bonn for a nongovernmental conference on disarmament.

Sources close to the French president said France sought cooperation in working toward a Western European nuclear deterrent which might eventually replace U.S. protection.

Floods devastate Spain

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 22 (AFP) -Rescue workers resumed work at dawn Friday amid scenes of devastation in three southeastern provinces after nearly two days of torrential rains. The latest casualty figures were 15 dead and 23 persons missing. Some 15,000 persons were said to be homeless. It was still raining in Valencia, but water levels had been falling since Thursday and weather forecasters said there was no danger of renewed downpours, However, there was concern for 150,000 villagers stranded in their homes 50 kilometers south of here, where an area covering 300 square kilometers was under water and could only be reached by helicopter and motorboat, Preliminary estimates put damage to Valencia's citrus fruit harvest, one of the region's main sources of income, at 3,000 million pesetas (some $25 million). In Alicante, the floods caused damage estimated at 2,000 mil-lion pesetas ($17 million) to vineyards.

Palme threatens to sink subs

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 22 (AP) -Prime Minister Olf Palme announced a tough new anti-submarise policy Friday, saying submerged alien subs skulking in neutral Sweden's waters risk getting blown out of the "Swedish territory will be protected against violations with all possible means." Palme said at a news conference, marking his Socialist government's first official comment on a three-weekold search off the Swedish coast for a suspected Soviet-bloc sub or subs.

"We'll sink a foreign sub violating our waters, if we consider it necessary." Palme said. Defense officials have indicated the search is nearing an end. Earlier they disclosed that sonar contacts with possible alien substurned out to be discarded refrigerators and other

Dale Peterson, spokesman forthe CIA, when asked about the defector, said: "We bave been asked that question several times today and have no comment on it." The Times said U.S. officials confirmed Treumann has defected. It said officials say the defection is particularly significant because he was an important spy for Polish. intelligence.

The Times reported that Treumann's espionage activities and reasons for his defection were tightly guarded secret. The newspaper said it learned Treumann stopped going to his New York office in July and reports began circulating in the banking community that he had vanished. He had told friends that he had been scheduled to return to Poland in August, the Times said.

At that time, neighbors said the family had not been seen for weeks. In late August, the Times said. Treumann's bank sent a onesentence notice to U.S. hanks saying Treumann had "terminated his activities as our representative in the United States."
